The Special Procedures of the Human Rights Council are independent human rights experts with mandates to report and advise on human rights from a thematic or country-specific perspective. The system of Special Procedures is a central element of the United Nations human rights machinery and covers all sets of rights: civil, cultural, economic, political, and social. As of August 2011, there are 41 Special Procedures (32 thematic mandates and 9 mandates relating to countries or territories) with 61 mandate-holders.

With the support of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), Special Procedures undertake country visits (fact-finding missions); act on individual cases and concerns of a broader, structural nature by sending communications to States in which they bring alleged violations to their attention; conduct thematic studies and convene expert consultations, develop international human rights standards, engage in advocacy, raise public awareness, and provide advice and support for technical cooperation. Special Procedures report annually to the Human Rights Council; the majority of the mandates also report to the General Assembly.

The Special Rapporteurs (SR), Independent Experts (IE), Working Groups (WG) and Special Representative of the Secretary-General serve in their personal capacities and undertake to uphold independence, efficiency, competence and integrity through probity, impartiality, honesty and good faith. They are not United Nations staff members and do not receive financial remuneration.

HOW TO FIND INFORMATION ON SPECIAL PROCEDURES

The OHCHR website (<http://www.ohchr.org>) provides information on the system of Special Procedures under Human Rights Bodies/ Special Procedures, including details on each mandate and the Coordination Committee. It also contains details of country visits, links to reports and press statements. For general enquiries, or to submit information (other than specific information on alleged human rights violations), please contact: SPBinfo@ohchr.org
