Dear Sir/Madam:

Re. Privacy Report OHCHR Contribution to be included/considered.

As all organisations are in a type of “business”, it should be made a part of their cost formulae/business model to ensure (compel) the “Right of the Data Subject to free access and ongoing updates of All data that is used and how”. A section on the corporate websites that have free access to portals, registered transactions, audited records for the Data Subjects. Data integrity is essential if used to have any value and citizens having involvement on a continuous basis will create a safety valve that will allow check on abuse and false conclusions.

Much like pollution and other externalities if these are not designed out of the Business Model(s) at the outset everyone will suffer generations of needless “fallout”. The most recent developments with SCL/Cambridge Analytics and so many more that have not been exposed have shown that the uncontrolled use of free data needs to be ruled in a different way GDPR and national laws may not do this.

I would like to thank you for the chance to rewrite my email, as always all communications need a second reading. I welcome any further feedback as to the progress of this very vital opportunity to set thing for the future.

Sincerely,

Ken Kanwal Gunjal
