United Nations (UN) entities (funds and programmes, specialized agencies, offices and departments of the UN Secretariat, related organizations and peacekeeping and political missions in the field) are requested to report on their implementation of the UN Disability Inclusion Strategy. This reporting form will be used by UN entities to report performance on the Strategy's Entity Accountability Framework.

The Strategy was launched by the Secretary-General in June 2019 to raise the UN's performance on disability inclusion across the UN system. Reporting on its implementation will enable an assessment of the extent to which disability inclusion is mainstreamed within the Organization's work, spotlight good practice and identify key areas which may require development of staff knowledge and capacity, technical resources, and assistance.

Entity reports inform the Secretary-General's report on system-wide implementation of the Strategy, which is prepared by the Disability Inclusion Team in the Executive Office of the Secretary-General. The system-wide report is submitted annually to the General Assembly in its regular session.

The Entity Progress Report on the implementation of the UN Disability Inclusion Strategy must be submitted to the Executive Office of the Secretary-General (EOSG) via the online reporting platform. Entities may wish to use the excel form (available below), which follows the reporting platform structure, to undertake their self-assessment and upload the information to the platform once the information is collated.

Individual entity reports will not be published.

* Q2 Justification for Rating (Required)

Provide explanation for each of the components including actions taken and data sources. Please include information and examples from both HQ and the field.

OHCHR adopted in 2020 its UN Human Rights Disability Rights Strategy (DRS). The action plan in the strategy includes specific actions to enhance leadership on disability rights. The High Commissioner (HC) and Deputy High Commissioner (DHC) engagement on disability rights in public and internal processes continue to be consistent. In 2022, the HC engaged with OPDs while on mission to Bosnia and Herzegovina. The DRS was assessed in a participatory process involving all responsible entities in OHCHR, qualifying DRS compliance against number of actions, and remedial action was taken based on such review. Senior management was involved in the evaluation, PBRB is a senior management level body in charge of planning processes while SMT is focused on policy. The HC arrived in September to OHCHR, given competing priorities, SMT review was postponed to 2023. Hence, the OHCHR meets all required actions under 'exceeding requirements'.

Additional comments on Indicator

Thank you for the information provided on this indicator. We note through the attachment (OHCHR_Ind1_Report and Action Plan FINAL) that the implementation of OHCHR's Disability Rights Strategy was discussed by the OHCHR Programme and Budget Review Board in 2022, which would reflect a rating of meets requirements. In relation to exceeds requirements, 1.c.iii requests entities to demonstrate that a specific senior-level mechanism is in place for ensuring accountability on disability inclusion. Based on the information provided in the attached report, the proposed mechanism is an annual review by the SMT, however it is not clear whether this review took place in 2022.

We also note that the report and action plan details two additional attachments as supporting documentation for this indicator which are not attached in the reporting platform. We would be grateful if further clarification in the justification section could be provided on the senior-level mechanism which was in place in 2022, or if the additional attachments provide this detail, grateful if they could be attached to support validation of the selected rating.

Provide explanation for each of the components including actions taken and data sources. Please include information and examples from both HQ and the field.

OHCHR's Organization Management Plan 2018-2021 (OMP, extended until 2023) is the main strategic document of OHCHR and includes persons with disabilities as 'spotlight population,' promoting a specific focus on them at both programmatic and operational levels. The OMP also refers to women and youth as spotlight population, promoting an intersecting view between both populations. In addition, 'spotlight populations' allow for planning on programmatic action where responsible planning personnel identifies mainly disability-specific action on persons with disabilities. Activities described as spotlight population do not need to be disability-specific, consequently, they can also serve mainstream programmes which have some prevalent component on disability rights. Through Annual Work Plans, planning can specify more than one population focus to better reflect human rights mainstreaming. Human rights mainstreaming is expressly referred to in the OMP, including the human rights of persons with disabilities. The results statements in the OMP reflect disability inclusion, nevertheless, OHCHR is not disaggregating data by disability in its main planning document beyond the 'spotlight population,' which allows for tracking work in that line. The Annual Work Plan allows for tracking work through direct references to this group in activities defined or, indirectly, through references to monitoring of recommendations stemming from the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. Consequently, OHCHR while partially meeting the actions under 'meeting requirements,' further action is needed to achieve this rating following the technical notes. Hence, rating is indicated as 'approaches requirements' for this indicator.

OHCHR Disability Rights Strategy, was designed to implement the UNDIS and to guide strategic action in programming. Annual Work Plans incorporated the action plan in the DRS to advance action in operations. OHCHR DRS was adopted in December 2020, strategic priorities were not translated in the field activities yet. Nonetheless, activities included in the annual work plan for 2022 targeting both disability-specific and mainstream activities are evidence of the impact of the Spotlight population strategy in the OMP. The DRS integrates disability rights in a sustainable way in the work of the Senior Management Team. In addition, the Human Rights Council mandate to report (A/HRC/49/12) will provide the opportunity to assess performance at a mid-year interval. Hence, OHCHR rates 'Exceeds requirements' under this indicator.

OHCHR counts with a Human Rights & Disability Advisor that leads the work on disability inclusion in OHCHR. In 2021, OHCHR appointed a P3 post to support OHCHR's Advisor. In addition, OHCHR launched in 2021 the UN Human Rights Disability Rights Community of Practice. The DRS COP is an electronic platform led by the Human Rights & Disability team, the CRPD Secretariat and the SR on the rights of persons with disabilities Secretariat, in which updates on disability rights are shared, training is provided and coordinated action is encouraged. The mandate of the Advisor is broad, it includes global advocacy in intergovernmental processes, inter-agency work, support to field presences, internal support in operational aspects, including planning and programming, engagement with external partners, fundraising, and supporting the work of senior management. In addition, the Advisor leads engagement with civil society and organizations of persons with disabilities. The Advisor with FOTCD also coordinates the disability focal points network in OHCHR. OHCHR meets all requirements indicated in the technical notes for rating 'meets requirements.'

In addition, the DRS COP will be assessed and strengthened. Given the increase in field work, OHCHR will explore ways of increasing the capacity of the Human Rights and Disability team.

UNDIS had a positive impact in UN country teams, opening more opportunities to work on disability rights. Human rights advisors and components in country teams and peacekeeping operations had been tasked to support UNDIS implementation in a number of countries. OHCHR will assess in 2023 the impact on the workload of the human rights teams supporting UNCTs and PKOs brought by UNDIS to submit complete information to the Human Rights Council in 2024.

OHCHR consults regularly with organizations of persons with disabilities through its main partner, the International Disability Alliance, on disability-specific issues. Special Procedures, the Human Rights Council Task Force on Accessibility and the Treaty Bodies system also engage in consultations for country visits and thematic reports, accessibility issues related to the Human Rights Council, and through country reviews, thematic work and general comments. OHCHR does not have a systematic approach to consultation. An email list with civil society organizations is used to distribute consultation documents, usually counting with several organizations of persons with disabilities included in it. The list does not count with disaggregation mechanisms to grant OHCHR the possibility of tracking engagement by constituency or thematic aspects. More generally, consultations are posted in OHCHR's website and replies are commonly posted there. A group of staff with disabilities and with dependents with disabilities created an employee reference group, OHCHR senior management met with this ERG in 2022 to consult on their priorities. The UNDIS guidelines for consultation were integrated in OHCHR policy. Hence, OHCHR rates as 'approaches' in this indicator.

OHCHR does not have a comprehensive baseline assessment on accessibility in two of the five different areas under consideration, namely Information and communication technology (ICT) and facilities. However, OHCHR has made progress in accessibility efforts for electronic publications on its website, with over 200 active titles in multiple official UN languages that are largely screen reader-compatible. In 2020 and 2021, OHCHR set and met targets of 3 and 4 accessible digital ePUBs, respectively. In 2022, OHCHR established a target of 5 ePUBs, which it exceeded by issuing 9 accessible ePUBs in various UN languages. OHCHR also developed and approved a funding proposal in 2022 to augment the development of accessible ePUBs and plans to explore fundraising efforts in 2023 to enable broader accessibility of its publication's portfolio. Subsequently, an initial investment of US$30,000 was allocated to MDPU for digital publishing accessibility work in 2023. In 2022, the mandate of the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities produced accessible versions of two reports, to the Human Rights Council, and the General Assembly. For accessible parliamentary documents, OHCHR anticipates that targets will be reached through enhancements to the down-stream language and desktop processing performed by the United Nations Office at Geneva (UNOG). OHCHR is prepared to facilitate the anticipated template-based solution when enhanced templates become available. Hence, it rates 'missing' until all accessibility assessments are completed.

* Q4 Actions planned and timeline to maintain/enhance progress (Required)

In 2022, a funding proposal for the development of accessible publications and documents was endorsed by the Programme and Budget Review Board, with an initial investment recommended to meet 2022 UNDIS targets on accessible publications. OHCHR has exceeded the publications accessibility target set for this year, with an additional 9 ePUBs issued in multiple official UN languages, in 2022.

A further three ePUBs are expected in February-March 2023. The OHCHR Organizational Effectiveness Action Plan 2022-23 on External Communication sets a target of a 10% increase in overall multilingualism, accessibility, and technological diversification of OHCHR publications by the end of 2023.

OHCHR received a funding allocation of US$30,000 for accessibility work to be carried out in 2023. However, meeting ongoing accessibility targets for new publications, as well as converting the Office's existing publications portfolio to accessible ePUB format, will require a high-value investment from OHCHR. Therefore, a fundraising proposal will be explored to seek voluntary contributions from non-traditional donors interested in accessibility and inclusion.

In 2023, OHCHR will evaluate its accessibility needs in field premises under its budgetary control to budget for accessibility in 2024.

The Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) has an accessibility policy for publications that is regularly updated to comply with Secretariat guidance. In April 2021, an updated Policy and Terms of Reference were approved, and additional publishing guidance was made available to OHCHR staff worldwide. The Unit also promoted the use of UN Disability-Inclusive Communications Guidelines in OHCHR publications. Despite the absence of dedicated funding, OHCHR has increased the number of accessible publications in multiple official UN languages and in the UN Publications Board's preferred ePUB digital format in recent years. In 2022, funding within the External Outreach Service was redeployed to develop eight ePUBs, and an additional ePUB was funded by an author section. The Unit has been allocated an initial investment of US$30,000 for ePUB accessibility work in 2023, with additional funding options to be explored in 2024 and beyond. OHCHR is also in a position to provide upstream support for accessible parliamentary documents. Overall, OHCHR is committed to increasing the accessibility of its publications and promoting disability inclusion in its work.

OHCHR has been providing reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities during a number of years. Being the Secretariat of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, the Human Rights Council and the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities had put OHCHR in the position to provide accommodation on a regular basis. In addition, OHCHR has staff with disabilities that also benefitted from reasonable accommodation. In 2018, OHCHR adopted a reasonable accommodation policy. OHCHR Disability Rights Strategy has included additional requirements on reasonable accommodation, inexistent in the original policy. In 2021, an electronic system and a procedure was established with an accountability mechanism that includes quality assessment. In 2022, a specific budget line was created to support reasonable accommodation. The system triggers centralized funding under this category. Hence, OHCHR 'exceeds requirements.'

The Model of Terms of Reference for Evaluations was revised in January 2022 to further address the integration of disability inclusion.

The guidance on preparation of evaluation reports was revised to promote the integration of disability inclusion and rights in evaluation reports, building upon the criteria and guidance set out in the model of ToR for evaluations and the UNEG guidance.

Integration of disability inclusion was also applied in the undertaking of the evaluations conducted in 2022:

- the Evaluation of the projects on Civic Space and Conflict-Related Sexual Violence in DRC
- The Colombia Country Programme 2017-2021
- The Interim Evaluation of the OHCHR Youth and Human Rights Project
- The project Strengthening the Capacity of the Independent National Commission on Human Rights in Liberia
- The OHCHR Programme in Ethiopia

The reports of the aforementioned evaluations have been self-assessed using the UNEG guidance and disability inclusion has been mainstreamed in the evaluation criteria and questions, methodology, findings, conclusions and recommendations.

OHCHR has been recognized for its good practices in evaluations, e.g. model of Terms of Reference for evaluations, which was used for the development of the UNEG Guidance on Integration of Disability Inclusion in Evaluations. OHCHR was active developing this UNEG guidance, which was launched in March 2022 by the UNEG Working Group on Gender, Disability and Human Rights co-convened by OHCHR and UN Women. Moreover, OHCHR shared examples and good practices for the ongoing revision of the UNEG guidance on the integration of Human Rights and Gender Equality in Evaluation.

The OIOS Biennial Report on “Strengthening the role of evaluation and the application of evaluation findings on programme design, delivery and policy directives” for the 2020-2021 biennium highlights OHCHR’s Evaluation of the Cambodia Country Programme 2017–2020 as a good practice in the inclusion of crosscutting dimensions. OIOS commended the evaluation for providing an excellent description of the human rights context and adding gender, human rights, and disability inclusion as specific evaluation criteria. These dimensions were explored as specific questions under all core lines of enquiry with stakeholders. Overall, OHCHR’s evaluation practices serve as a valuable example for promoting gender considerations, human rights, and disability inclusion in evaluations.

* Q2 Justification for Rating (Required)

Provide explanation for each of the components including actions taken and data sources. Please include information and examples from both HQ and the field.

OHCHR lacks disability-specific guidelines for mainstreaming disability inclusion in country programmes, with the exception of integrating CRPD Committee's concluding observations in country programmes. However, OHCHR's country programmes are an essential part of its Management Plan 2018-2023 and are formulated based on an assessment of the human rights situation to identify those most affected, including people with disabilities. The office identifies the biggest gaps and relevant target groups to achieve country results defined by 2023. While partially meeting the requirements, OHCHR needs further action to achieve a rating of 'approaching requirements' for this indicator, according to the technical notes. OHCHR also promotes an intersecting view between people with disabilities and women, who are considered a spotlight population. Hence, it rates 'missing requirements.'

OHCHR is part of the UN Partnership on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the UNDIS focal point network. In 2022, OHCHR was adjudicated with two UNPRPD projects, with ILO and IDA on climate change, led by climate change team; and with UNICEF and IDA on support and care systems. Hence, OHCHR meets all requirements to 'exceed requirements' according to the technical notes.

OHCHR is an entity of the UN Secretariat and is governed by the Organization's policies, rules and regulations.

OHCHR continues to integrate diversity and inclusion throughout the entire human resources management life-cycle. This includes workforce planning and outreach measures, talent management, training, mentoring, performance management and other measures related to recruitment, retention and promotion of staff.

Employment and other Human Resources related policies, strategies and practices in terms of substantive equality, non-discrimination and diversity are aligned, and compliant with, Secretary-General directives. The UN Human Rights Disability Rights Strategy and Action Plan supports the Office in apportioning roles and responsibilities necessary to deliver UNDIS objectives and associated performance indicators.

Workplace adjustments, to include: equipment, accommodation for travel, household support and mobility are administered on an individual basis, and upon request through a dedicated portal.

The UN Human Rights Office (OHCHR) is seeking to enhance diversity and inclusion among its staff and management. However, there are challenges to fully implementing this goal due to outdated staff rules that need to be updated. OHCHR is encouraging the Secretary-General to engage in dialogue with relevant committees and member states to consider disability-specific benefits and support services.

OHCHR has taken steps to consolidate and allocate objectives and performance indicators for enhancing diversity and inclusion, including establishing an Organizational Effectiveness Action Plan on Diversity and Inclusion. However, the OHCHR Senior Diversity and Inclusion Adviser position is currently vacant, and recruitment is ongoing to fill the role.

OHCHR is committed to delivering the recommendations of its internal Diversity Task Force and adhering to General Assembly resolutions on staff composition and the Secretary-General's priorities on geographic diversity, gender parity, youth, and disability inclusion. Overall, the organization aims to create a diverse and inclusive workforce to effectively carry out its mission to promote and protect human rights globally.

OHCHR developed a training of trainers' package and a SDG-CRPD resource package that are available online for public use. In previous years this training of trainers' package has been broadly used to deliver and to build on capacity building strategies across the UN and beyond. In OHCHR, it is used to build staff capacity and to work with external partners. Nevertheless, OHCHR has not adapted these tools to reflect operations' capacity requirements. In 2021, the Human Rights and Disability Unit supported the UNDIS Secretariat and the Development Coordination Office to deliver training on human resources. These were made available online to UN Secretariat and UNCTs, both including OHCHR staff. In 2022, UNDIS Secretariat distributed a training on UNDIS and this was distributed in-house. OHCHR has monitored use of available online trainings, with 13 staff trained by LMS-6835. Hence, OHCHR 'approaches requirements' under the technical notes.

Additional comments on Indicator

Thank you for the information provided on this indicator. In order to meet requirements, entities are requested to demonstrate that training on disability inclusion is mandatory for all staff, in addition to tracking completion and use of such trainings and learning resources. Based on the information provided, learning and training opportunities are available to all staff, and OHCHR is monitoring the use of these trainings by staff, however, the mandatory nature of this training is a planned action for 2023. If training on disability inclusion by OHCHR staff was not yet mandatory during the timeframe of reporting (1 January – 31 December 2022), the recommended rating is 'approaches requirements'.
