

ADVANCE QUESTIONS TO MADAGASCAR- ADD.2

NETHERLANDS

- To what extent does the “Haute Autorité de la Transition” consider it possible to gain greater credibility both nationally and internationally within a short period of time, taking into account the different views of the population?
- To what extent does the “Haute Autorité de la Transition” see possibilities for the curbing of the detrimental effects of the economic situation on economic, social and cultural rights, in a way that takes and keeps all relevant parties which could contribute to solving this problem on board? To what extent does the “Haute Autorité de la Transition” consider it likely that the Millennium Development Goals will be achieved?
- To what extent does the “Haute Autorité de la Transition” consider it possible to implement the international human rights mechanism, while the government budget is falling and while the “Haute Autorité de la Transition” may not have the legitimacy to do so?
- To what extent does the “haute Autorité de la Transition” consider it likely that it can realise its international obligations in terms of women’s rights, which it has pledged to respect in its pledge for candidacy of the Human Rights Council?
- To what extent does the “haute Autorité de la Transition” consider itself able to guarantee the rule of law and the right to a fair trial in the politically turbulent time Madagascar is currently in? How does the “haute Autorité de la Transition” qualify the claims that political opponents have been arrested and detained and denied a transparent and judicially sound procedure?
